Mrs. Ellam. Chapel

Dear Mrs. Chapel:

Please pardon the delay in returning the coins that Mrs. Beard left with Mrs. Wood. These were brought to my home and I have been away for the summer, and I am sorry that I forgot about them. I am returning the coins by parcel post insured. Unfortunately there is nothing valuable in the lot, and I very much doubt whether you could get much more than a dollar for all of them if you sold them through numismatic channels. You might get a little more if you could sell them to some small stationer or curio shop. The only pieces worth more than face value are the two half-cents for which you might get 10 cents. The old copper cents would only be worth two or three cents each; the two silver pieces are worth only their silver value which would not be more than 30 cents each; and the other ~~one~~ is worth only two cents each.

Very truly yours,

Curator.

Dear Mrs. Chapel:

Mrs. Beard has just informed me that you did not receive the coins you sent on to her for me to value. These were returned by parcel post insured July 31st, and you should have received them at that time. Kindly let us know if by any chance you have received the package of coins by this time. If not, we will have a tracer put on the package and recover what we can from the insurance. Unfortunately we can recover but little as all the coins were worth only a dollar or so. I am herewith enclosing a copy of my previous letter to you.

Very truly yours,

Curator.
